RESOLUTION FOR BOARD MEETING OF AUGUST 4, 2016

RESOLUTION sponsored by the Board of Commissioners recognizing the Chicago Defender Charities Bud Billiken® Parade and Picnic

WHEREAS, on May 5, 1905, Robert Sengstacke Abbott founded the Chicago Defender newspaper, with a plan to use the newspaper to address African-American issues. In 1921, Mr. Abbott started the children's section of the newspaper, which was called the Chicago Defender, Jr.; and

WHEREAS, the young editor of the Chicago Defender Jr. was Robert Watkins, who was known as Bud Billiken®, and, it included an application to the Bud Billiken® Club. "The 'Rules of the Bud Billiken® Club' guided youth to take pride in their race and to strive towards middle class respectability." The Club was named after the Billiken, "the guardian angel of little children, according to Chinese legend." Moreover, the Bud Billiken® Club sponsored scholarships, and assisted youth with job training, internships and college recruitment. The Club featured outstanding Chicago youth through their volunteer work and essay contests. The Club also organized school supply giveaways. In addition, the Club focused on creating safe communities through conflict resolution and it promoted the importance of education; and

WHEREAS, today, the Bud Billiken® Parade focuses on "a day of family fun and celebration that kicks off the return to school for Chicagoland school children, while...staying true to the spirit of providing a chance for underserved kids to be a part of the spotlight." The 2016 Bud Billiken® Royal Court is comprised of six impressive young boys and girls." Moreover, "...the royal court is enhanced by two Bud Billiken® Royal Advisors who provide support, encouragement, and guidance to the court during their reign"; and

However, by 1929, the day of fun “morphed” into a summer-time celebration and parade. Therefore, in 1929, Mr. Abbott expanded on the Bud Billiken® concept to include the Parade. The parade’s purpose was as a way to give inner city children a creative outlet and a chance to shine in the limelight; and

WHEREAS, now in its 87th year of celebration, and with the outstanding work of the Chicago Defender Charities Team and Board of Directors’ leadership of the President, Dr. Marcus T.
